I'm not really familiar with programming the UtherNet, though I do have one. However, you should be aware that there is currently work on an UtherNet II, which promises to have a much simpler programming API. I think you can find some really good discussion of UtherNet programming on the comp.sys.apple2 newsgroup.

You can see the new card here: <http://a2retrosystems.com/>

And follow their dev blog here: <http://www.a2retrosystems.com/blog/>
