We can help for the translation. you will find here several French speaking people.

I think the first step would be to run some OCR over the PDF file so we could grab the text. That will be easier to translate and format the source code using a Courier font (much more easier to read than the font used in the book).

If you can extract the test, paste it here and we will do a first step translation : French -> Bad English, so you could take it from there and turn it as good English.

I think there is a real interest for this Sound part. It has been written by Dany Bar who did the FTA early music code (Nucleus).
