Subject: Online Code Formatter
Posted by Dagen on Wed, 08 Oct 2014 15:06:24 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Ok, I may have had a great idea! I noticed that someone posted some nicely formatted source on a forum and I wanted to do the same, but I realized I needed to run it through a formatter first and THEN I thought, "Why don't I take the best formatter around and host it online?"

Here's what I came up with after a few beers last night.
http://apple2.gs/cadiusformatter.php

Please try to use this, along with the [code][/code] block when posting source code on the forum.

Paste your messy source code in there and try it out. It expects Merlin-style source.

PS- NOT affiliated or authorized by the original CADIUS authors, but I hope they are cool with the idea... I just really really like their tools!

PPS - This won't help with facebook/csa2 posting because they suck and don't have formatting like <pre> blocks. That's why this forum exists. ;)

Subject: Re: Online Code Formatter
Posted by Oz on Wed, 08 Oct 2014 15:50:03 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Few remarks :

  - When you cut / past Text in your Original Source Window, the text having some Quotes ' ' are translated with backslash : \'. And we find them too in the formatted Source windows
  - You should add a Clear button to erase the Original Source Window content.

  Olivier

Subject: Re: Online Code Formatter
Posted by Dagen on Wed, 08 Oct 2014 18:50:52 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Thank you! I have fixed the quotes and added a "Clear" button. I apologize for not testing more before releasing.

I also made it so that when you scroll the left window, the right window scrolls in sync, so you can more easily compare the input<->output. If this is annoying, let me know. I can disable it or make it an optional checkbox or something.