Hey folks, there's a handful of users here now, and I've gotten lots of super constructive feedback both here and via email/Facebook. I've tried to keep up with it all, but it's time to extend my trust to the community.

If anyone would like to help out, and be a moderator for these forums, I'd greatly appreciate it. For right now that mostly means approving accounts. But you'd also be able to manage the creation of new categories and forums. You could also help with silly little things like making Apple II specific "smileys" for posts if you want. This forum runs using FudForum software, which I've never used before, but it seems fairly straightforward.

Just send me a Private Message and I'll make you a mod.

I have been a baaaaad admin...

We have had a new admin/moderator for the past month and I haven't taken the time to properly thank him. Welcome our newest awesome mod, also a great poster on the forum, mcpderez!

He's already been super helpful taking care of account approval, suggesting improvements, basically monitoring the site while I get to be lazy and letting me know when it's down because I forgot to pay the bill. Doh!

Mega thanks to mcpderez!

PS- You can still be a mod if interested, just PM this admin account... but if you **really** want to help out, post something on the forums! Or if you aren't already a user, sign up! You are the community. We just work here. ;)
